FLASHES

Poitier and Dan Aykroyd—for Sneakers, a comedy/adventure that begins filming Oct. 28 in San Francisco. Says Phoenix: "The script's really good. I play a computer hacker. We're a team of five. Redford—gosh! Kingsley—gosh!"... ◆ Robin Williams is considering a change of pace in what is becoming one of the most interesting movie careers around: the role of Harvey Milk, the gay supervisor of San Francisco who was assassinated in 1978. The film, The Mayor of Castro Street, based on Randy Shilts' 1983 book of the same name, will be coproduced by Oliver Stone. The rumor that Stone will also direct is not true, yet. "There's no director set," says Stone's press agent, Andrea Jaffe. "Oliver is just developing the project." —Lawrence O'Toole, Lou Aguilar, Stephen Schaefer, Rebecca Ascher-Walsh

A ROLE TO MILK: Williams

ENTERTAINMENT weekly 10/18/91